About Charanjit

Charanjit Singh is an associate in the firm's Los Angeles office where he provides litigation and general counseling services to California businesses. He represents clients across many industries, including but not limited to sports, entertainment, media, and technology, real estate, retail, financial services, and professional services. His litigation experience involves employment and labor law litigation involving claims of harassment, discrimination, retaliation, wrongful termination, unfair competition, breach of contract and wage and hour issues. Singh also handles business litigation and business torts cases. Singh believes in an aggressive, yet pragmatic approach to litigation to protect his clients' interests and achieve the most practicable solutions to various problems his clients may face.

In addition to litigation, Singh also advises clients on a variety of matters such as compliance with employment and labor law, business corporation, business reorganization, and general advice on copyright and trademark matters and various business needs.

Singh is fluent in Punjabi and conversational Hindi.
